to Victory!

The electoral college of '92 will con-Or 33 Short of a Majority. Now suppose the wildcat dreams of the rainbow chasers should materialize, the vote Democratic votes..... Doubtful Michigan districts.....

Success! That is the watchword of the democracy. That is-and it should be-the consideration which actuates the great majority of the rank and file of the party in their expressions of preferences for the presidential nomination, and hence

The great majority favor the nomination of David B. Hill.

For some time the Cleveland papers of this city have been endeavoring to make it appear that the people of Atlanta and Georgia are for Cleveland. In one of these there appeared on Saturday about two columns of interviews with gentleman put down as favoring Mr. Cleveland's nomination, this with elaborate headlines and introduction claiming that the sentiment is all one way-that everybody wants Cleveland. Sunday is not a good day to secure interviews, as but few people leave their homes except to go to church; but yesterday several Consti-TUTION reporters set out to find whether that two columns of interviews published on Saturday reflected the sentiments of all the people. And they succeeded in finding a few Hill men!

The interviews are given below. They seem to show conclusively that the people are for Hill. These interviews were taken at random. The gentlemen quoted were asked simply for their choice-in view of the present political situation-between Cleveland and Hill. It will be noticed that several whose views are given here were goted in the article referred to above. This apparent conflict was explained by them in about these words: Personally we admire Mr. Cleveland; but in view of the fact that the vote of New York is absolutely essential to democratic success-a self-evident truism-and that the democracy of New York will declare for Hill, then Hill should be the nominee.

Nobody doubts Mr. Cleveland's ability; almost everybody admires him. But the consensus of opinion seems to be that he is not the man for the democracy to nominate, and

It may be well in passing to refer to the rapid growth of Hill sentiment in Georgia. Senator Colquitt's support of Hill is significant. He has always been a great admirer of Cleveland, but with the political foresight characteristic of the man, he sees that Hill, if nominated, would be sure to win; and there is now no more enthusiastic Hill man in the country than he. But Senator Colquitt is not alone by any means. All over the state men who have heretofore been regarded as the strongest Cleveland men, now say that Cleveland's nomination would be party suicide; and the first choice of the great majority of these is undoubt-

They admire Hill as a man, as a democrat, as a party leader. They see that here is a man whose private life and whose public career is spotless-a man who goes into the Senate a poorer man than he was when he became governor of New York; a man who has been criticised and vilified by the republican and mugwump press, but who comes through that criticism sunscathed; and they see in David Bennett Hill the greatest democratic leader of his day and generation—the one man who has been able to turn over the Empire State to the democracy, and thus to give to the people of that state their

No wonder they admire Mr. Hill. And no wonder that the great majority of the members of the last legislature—as is shown in another column-favor Hill beyond all with New York's and undoubtedly they reflect in their terviews the sentiments of the people. and undoubtedly they reflect in their in-The people of Atlanta and of Georgia are for David B. Hill.

Whom Does New York Want?

Hon. W. A. HEMPHILL, Mayor of Atlanta-Championed by Their Chosen
The first consideration for all of us should be the success of the party. To succeed it seems to me essential that we should consult the wishes of the doubtful states. It is their votes we need in the electoral college. Whomever the democrats from those states want we should select. To my mind the question will be practically settled on February 22d, when New York acts. Major John A. FITTEN-I am very strongly in favor of Mr. Hill. On the grounds of availability, he is clearly the man. Mr. Cleveland, with all the prestige of being in, with the entire machinery of the government at his back, and with a party united in his support, could not win. Why give him an-other chance, with the odds infinitely greater against him? We want a man who can win. The figures of the different elections since Cleveland and Hill have been in politics show conclusively that Hill is the stronger man. This mugwump and republican cry that Hill slaughtered Cleveland in New York in 1888 is the veriest bosh. THE CONSTITUTION'S editorial on Saturday, and the facts there set forth, ought to forever silence such talk. The simple fact is that Hill is a stronger man than Cleveland. And beyond that: while I admire Cleveland, I believe Hill is in every way a stronger man. He has been prominent in public life twelve years-isn't it?-and his record is spotless. He is an ideal democrat, is in thorough sympathy with his party, and is, I believe, the man above all others to nominate.

COLONEL R. U. HARDEMAN, Treasurer of the State of Georgia-I am for the man who can carry New York state and who can win the fight. That man is David B. Hill, and surely not Mr. Cleveland.

COLONEL GEORGE W. ADAIR is a red hot Hill man. Ha believes that Hill is the man for the democracy and the man of all men that will lead the party to success. "I am for David B. Hill," says he, "on any basis you may put it. I believe he is the strongest man in the party, and the man for the next race. Mr. Cleveland is a good man, but it would be a mistake to nominate him again. He was elected once; by his policy during his term of office, he was defeated in the second race, and it would be a piece of folly to select him for a third time. When a political racer gets beaten after a four-years' trial it is not good judgment to trot him out again. We must have new material and Hill is the best and most available presidential timber I know of. He is available, and desireable because he is a success, and there is nothing more successful than success. Then, Mr. Cleveland's civil service policy is not in accord with what I consider good democratic principles. The people were disappointed with him on that line.

"Yes, sir, I am a straight-out Hill man. Mr. Cleveland shouldn't be nominated again just because he has a pretty wife and baby.' The Doubtful States Should Decide.

GENERAL PHIL COOK, Secretary of State.—We want to win. Every democrat who has the good of the party at heart will put success above every other consideration. Hill has carried New York when Cleveland could not. Nobody who studies the figures can escape the conclusion that Hill is much stronger in New York than Cleveland. Were I the strongest kind of a Cleveland man I could not but believe that Hill is the most available man for the party nominee. I am for Hill against everybody. Cleveland kept his enemies in office when he should have helped his friends, and I have no use for that kind of a democrat.

ALEX C. KING-I recognize the ability Mr. Cleveland displayed as president, but it is essential to democratic success that we carry New York and Indiana at the next election. I do not believe that Mr. Cleveland can do this. In 1884, while he was governor of New York, with all of the power of that effice in his control, and with the prestige of an election to hundred thousand, he beat Blaine, whose record was so vulnerable that many repub licans refused to vote for him, and, with the mugwumps, voting for Cleveland, in New York state by barely twelve hundred majority and it was conceded the accident of Burchard's "Ruin, Romanism and Rebellion" at the las moment turned the tide against Blaine. In this year Old Tom Hendricks carried Indiana.

In 1888 Mr. Cleveland, with the prestige of his administration to aid him, lost both New York and Indiana, and gave us a republican congress that nearly imposed upon the south the force bill. The attitude of Mr. Cleveland on the financial question makes his nomination a serious blow at our democratic integrity in Georgia. It will drive thousands into the third party who otherwise will stay in the democratic fold, and will endanger democratic success in many counties in this state. Mr. Hill has shown a degree of ability in his career which lifts him above the mere politician, and shows him the ablest leader the democracy now has. I believe he can carry New York, and I am therefore for

Hill the Man For Victory.

S. M. Inman.—Mr. Cleveland is a good man and a statesman, but a wonderfully poor political manager. Even if he could carry New York his ultra free-trade views would beat him in the country at large. The democratic party is for tariff reform, but is not for free trade by any manner of means. Then it seems to me that a man who couldn't be elected when he had the whole machinery of the government at his back, with every influence in his favor, is not available now. I am not for Hill in particular-that is, I do not consider him the only democrat in the country who could win; but I am firm in my belief that it would be party suicide to nominate Cleveland.

Julius L. Brown-Govenor Hill is my choice for president against the field. He is the man to win and is as capable of making a good president as he is certain to win. I have no hesitancy in the world in saying that David B. Hill is the man for the democratic party to put out next time. I am a democrat, and so strict a partisan that I stake much faith on the adage to the victor belongs the spoils. Mr. Cleveland's policy to the contrary, has ruined him with his party and makes him utterly unfit for a leader. The time has come when the democracy must look to a man whose energy and effort in politics others. These men come from the people, is directed forever for the good of the party.

Governor Hill is the man to be put in the lead, and when he goes to the white house, as he certainly will do, nobody in this broad land of ours will rejoice more in that hour of damo cratic triumph than I shall do.

JACK J. SPALDING-While I am a great ad mirer of Mr. Cleveland, and coincide with his views on the tariff, I firmly believe it would be suicidal to nominate him. I believe Mr Hill is the man for us to nominate, if we expect to succeed. I consider him the ablest leader we have, and as Simon-pure a democrat as ever lived. All these attacks upon him or any other good democrat, by democratic papers, are wrong and very democralizing. They remind me of the attacks that were made upon Andrew Jackson. The south is more interested in "picking a winner" than any other part of this country, in order to prevent force bills, and to maintain our commercial and the white supremacy. We can't afford to let this white supremacy. We can't attord to let this be a "consolation" purse for beaten candidates—it's the "Derby" with us, and we must enter an unbeaten candidate. To my mind Hill is the only man in it."

The Twenty-Second of February. MR. WALTER R. BROWN, chairman of the county central committee, considers Hill the strongest, best, most available and most desirable man. "Why," said he, "Hill has New York solidly and will get the Georgia delegation. We should have a Hill club here by all means. If one was organized it would surprise you to see how many Hill men there are in Atlanta. There is a wonderfully strong sentiment here in favor of his nomination, and I believe he is the choice of Georgia for the presidency. By all means let us have a Hill club at once, and show our strength.

HON, FRANK P. RICE, Member of the State Democratic Executive Committee and Member of the Aldermanic Board .- I am a Hill man. Through all my observation of political democrat than Hill, and I can't see where opposition to him can begin. He is the choice of New York and I believe he will be the choice of the national democracy at Chicago.

Dr. C. E. MURPHY, Senior councilman from the fith ward—I know of no one who is a purer or better democrat than Hill, and I'm for that man first, last and all the time. He can win, and we want a winner.

We Must Look to Success.

W. H. VENABLE-If there is a man in Atlanta whose opinion and whose judgment on things political is worth anything, that man is William H. Venable. And he is a success as a political prophet. "Put me down for Hill," ays he, "and I am with the mass of people in taking this position. He is, beyond all doubt. the most available man for the place, and the only man who can be considered a possibility now. I have been to New York and have talked with the people, and let me tell you, Hill has that state solid. What the democratic party has to do to succeed is to carry New York nd Indiana. To do this, I believe David B. Hill should be nominated for president and Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana, for vice president.
That would be a winning ticket. Yes, size always quote me as being for David B. Hill for

HON, CHARLES NORTHEN, Member of Council from the Fifth Ward-You can put me down as an enthusiastic Hill man. I believe every man who knows Mr. Hill personally is for him for anything he may want. I know that Hill is the choice of the democrats of New York, that he can carry New York overwhelmingly, and that means that he can be elected. We want a man who can win, and that man is David B. Hill.

J. N. BATEMAN-The democratic party wants a man who has the respect and honor and confidence of the people, one who is firm and determined in his purposes, and one for whom there is no toil too arduous and no reheaded, disappointed and ambitious politicians are not seeking. Such a man is Senator David B. Hill, of the state of New York. Senator Hill has done more for the democratic party and more to perpetuate it than any other of his living countrymen. By his Hurculean efforts and untiring energy he has made the Empire State a certainty for democracy. The arisagainst him, but being a man of the people and for the people, he has successfully led them to victory, and to such a man I believe the people of Georgia will rally. Georgians, be not deceived! Remember in the past two years you have advocated the rights of the masses and fought monopolies and those classes who oppressed and distressed you, and by your united efforts in nearly every instance you were safely led to victory. You are told, however, that your victory means defeat in the future; but be not discouraged, for "united you will stand" and divided you will surely

W. B. Lowe-Hill is, I believe, the only man who can bring success to the party. While Cleveland is going around making mugwump speeches, Hill is working for the party's good. I like that sort of a democrat myself, and I want to see him president. We want a man who can win, and I believe Hill is that man.

J. S. RAINE.-My preference is Hill against Cleveland first, last and all the time. Hill is a wonderful leader—there is no doubt about that. He is the very idea of what a democrat should be, and not only would he prove a splendid presidential candidate, but a magnificent president.

W. L. PEEL-I was a strong Cleveland man, but I don't like the way he treated his friends. Hill is a better and a stronger man, and the one for us to win with. I believe he is certain to be the unanimous choice of New York, and were I opposed to him I should say, "Let the doubtful states decide." We want a man who can lead the party to success.

MR. C. D. MEADOR is also an enthusiastic supporter of Hill. "I believe," said he, "that Hill is the most available man for the presidency in the democratic party. He has proven himself in every way worthy of the nomine tion. There is no man stronger with the great mass of voters. If the doubtful states want him, the party should nominate him."

MR. C. J. KEITH thinks Hill is the only man to be considered for the democratic nom-ination. "Solid in his home state, the most important in the election, he goes into the race stronger than any other man," says Mr. "I am in favor of him because "I believe he could be elected."

MR. SAMUEL W. GOODE believes that Hill

York selects is the man for the democratic commation, he thinks. Here's what he says: "If New York gives Hill a solid support in the convention, I am for him, and think it would be a mistake not to nominate him. New York is very important to democratic success. If Hill can make New York solid for the democracy it is a great card in his favor. I am for the man New York votes for, if he is a good man, and I know of no better man than Hill." Cleveland's Nomination Would Be Suicidal.

JUDGE H. E. W. PALMER is an enthusiastic supporter of David B. Hill. He considers veland no longer a presidential possibility, and as being to all intents and purposes out of the race. "Hill," says he, "is the best man for the race. We must go into the race with a good fighting chance, and to do this Hill should be selected. To succeed we must have New York; that is conceded. Hill can give us that state. Then we want Indiana and New Jersey. I believe that no mar. would succeed in these states like Hill. If he is selected by New York it would be suicidal to

"it will take a political miracle to keep him from getting the nomination. He, in my opinion, is the best man the party can select. He is strong in New York, strong in the south, and every indication points to his being our

MR. J. J. FALVEY, whose head is level on all subjects, and especially so on politics, is for Hill first, last and all the time. "Hill is my man." says he, enthusiastically. "any way you put it, and he can't be beaten. There is no use kicking; he's headed toward the white house, and, mark the prophecy, he'll get the democratic nomination. I am in favor of him because he is a good, able man-a statesman who is in harmony with the people on the live issues of the day. He has proven himself worthy, and his people have shown their appreciation of his services by repeated They think no office too high for him-nothing too good in return for his devotion to the party. Give us Hill. We can win with him."

F. J. COOLEDGE—My preference is Hill. He is stronger than Cleveland and will carry New York. Success should be our watchword. Mr. Cleveland cannot win, I am afraid, Mr. Hill can.

J. L. Driscol-I have always been a stron Cleveland man, and was for him until he wrote his letter on the silver question. I be-lieve that weakened him with his party through the country, and I don't believe he could win. While I am not for Hill against the field, I think the preferences of the doubtful states should decide the question. It looks as if they were for Hill, and if they are he hould be nominated.

WILLIS RAGAN.—I like Hill, like his way of working, and he will lead the democratic party to victory. We want a man who can win, and I firmly believe Hill is that man. His continued successes show that he knows how to win. He is the man who should be nominated, in my opinion. Hill Has Never Been Beaten.

H. H. SMITH-I want Hill above everybody, for he is the best and strongest man in the party. We, in the south, should be for the man who can win. That should be the first consideration. Another dose of Harrison would mean a force bill, and we must work for success. Mr. Cleveland, whom I think a very able man, has the prestige of defeat; Mr. Hill has the prestige of victory. That seems to me the question in a nutshell. We want a man who can win, and that man is

COUNCILMAN WILLIAM P. HILL-I certainly admire the democratic backbone posed by Mr. Hill. a great admirer of Mr. Cleveland. But availability is the watchword for this campaign and it appears at this time that Hill is the most

JUDGE ANDREW E. CALHOUN-As Non York is the pivotal state, we should take the man most wanted by the democratic voters of that state. While in New York I studied that question very closely, and if Hill don't sweep the state for the nomination I will be very much surprised. And if he is nominated, he will carry it by from twenty-five to fifty thou-

HOWELL ERWIN-For Hill every time. It would be the most fatal step the party could take to nominate any one against the expressed wish of the democrats of the state which is absolutely essential to democrati success, and that the democrats of New York want Hill there is not the shadow of a doubt HUBERT CULBERSON-Sentiment is an excellent thing in its place, but success is the thing in politics. I am for success in preference to the claims of any one man. We cannot do without New York. New York wants Hill and not Cleveland; therefore I am for the man who has never lost a battle. JOHN L. TYE-What's the matter with Hill? I am not in favor of running any more unsuccessful campaigns. Give us the man who can insure victory.

Tom Paine-I am a great admirer of Mr.

Cleveland personally, and if I could by my word name the next president, would name him. But as it takes the vote of New York to settle that question, I think it would be good politics to take the man who can carry that state. If the delegates to the national conven tion say he is the man, that should settle it. T. C. ERWIN-I am for the most available man. If New York says Hill, New York

ED CARTER-The well-known attorney, is or the man who can most certainly carry New York, and "It looks like Hill," said he, The People Want to Win.

R. J. GRIFFIN-Hill is the only man fit to cope with the republican party, and I favor him strongly. His name is a synonym of success. We want a man who can win, and my firm conviction is that Hill is that man. I would like to see a Hill club formed, and would gladly take an active part in such a club. J. R. GRAY-Hill is the most available man because he is the strongest democrat. I'm for him against Cleveland every time. I have no sympathy with the attacks on Mr. Hill. His record is pure and clean, and nobody has ever peen able to point to any act of his that could truly be criticised. . He is a democrat, a true representative of the party, and I believe he can defeat Harrison or any other candidate ntative of the party, and I believe he party and will make a good president. We want to succeed this time.

ROBERT WINSHIP-I am for the man that can win. I am a great admirer of Mr. Hill, and if it develops that he is the most available man, then I will cheerfully second his nomination. Personally I like Mr. Cleveland, but politically I have no preference between the men, and we certainly want to win.

I. S. MITCHELL—I am for Hill. He is by all means the most available man in the party. What I mean is that if he is nominated he will be elected. There seems to be no doubt of his nomination.

HON. J. M. STEPHENS, Superintendent Western Union Telegraph Company and Member of the Aldermanic Board.—I think Hill the strongest man in the democrati party today, and am for him without any con-

Mr. McAllen B. Marsh thinks that it should be President Hill by all means. "If Hill gets the New York delegation."

County Commission—Hill against the world is my desire. He's the sharpest, smartest man in American politics today, and if he wins the presidency the broom will sweep the deck so clean that democrats will have a chance for some of those good, fat places.

Dr. W. S. Elkin—If Hill is the demand of

New York, and New York is essential to the success of the democratic party, I'm for Hill. J. J. DUFFY—He of the great condiment house on Peachtree strect—Hill, of course. Who can compare with Hill? He's matchless in politics, democracy and statesmanship, and can lead an almost hopeless cause to victory. With Hill in the white house democracy will reign supreme, while with Cleveland there 'twill be like it was before. To the victor be-longs the spoils, and a true politician never forgets his friends or forgives his enemies.

HON. J. D. TURNER, Senior Councilman

from the Fifth Ward-New York will likely control the nomination, and naturally I'll be with New York. If that state names Hill, and just now it looks that way, I'm for Hill first, last and all the time before the Chicago

CAPTAIN J. W. ENGLISH, Chairman of the Board of Police Commission and President of the American Trust and Banking Company-I'm for the winning man. If New York can tell me who that man is before the Chicago convention I'll be for that man-Hill or Cleve-

A. D. Howard-I'm for Hill and we couldn't do better. Mr. T. H. Huzza—The young democracy of the country stands behind Hill. I'm one of the young ones and hope to be found in the foremost ranks of the party. It's a certainty that I will yell for Hill, because he will be

HON. W. H. HULSEY-New York will name the nominee. I'm for the nominee and just now it looks very much like that nominee will be David Bennett Hill.

Dr. JOE JACOBS-Hill, of course, is the man. I can't see how any one who keeps current with the times can want any one else.

DR. CHARLES O. TYNER-To me it seems that Hill is the only man who can possibly carry New York. For that reason he ought to be nominated. Then there are many other reasons, too. Among them is the fact that he is one of the best and purest democrats in the

CARL WEINMEISTER-I'm a Hill man world without end.

ED C. PETERS-I'm a Hill man, and couldn't be otherwise if I'd try. He's young, energetic, and every young man in the south should be with him.

DR. WILLIAM PERRIN NICOLSON-Hill is a warm, generous, impulsive democrat who knows nothing but the interest of his party. That party he loves, as his devotion to it has been shown by his work. I'm for the man who works for his party, and that man is D. B.

DR. T. D. LONGINO-Hill has always been my choice, and is my choice now. Hill is sure T. S. LEWIS-I'm a Hill man. Is it necessary to say more?

Mr. John D. Colvin, Junior councilman from the second ward-David Bennett Hill is dead certain death to the republican party, and for that reason I'm for him. Hill is a sure winner and I want a chance to vote for him. Only give me the chance and see how quick I'll vote for him. I'm for him all over. We want a man who can win. That ought to be the first consideration of every democrat. especially every southern democrat. I'm the most enthusiastic Hill man you ever saw.

Whoever New York Wants. COLONEL P. H. BREWSTER-For the de cratic party to go into the next fight without being assured of the vote of New York would be like a man going fishing without bait. Therefore I am for Hill.

CAPTAIN W. H. BROTHERTON-No party or man can be successful who forgets those to whom success is wrought. I am for success next time, and as the vote of New York is absolutely necessary, I am for the man who can most assuredly carry it. That man looks like Hill today, but if the New York democratic convention decides on another, its opinion should be deferred to.

ALBERT HOWELL, SR .- The action of the doubtful states should settle the question of the nomination. If New York and the other nominated; if for Hill, he should be the party CAPTAIN JOHN STEPHENS-Cleveland acted as attorney for the republicans while occupying the white house by the grace of the demo-cratic party. We want Hill because he'll know his friends when he sees them. JUDGE R. T. DORSEY-It is a question of who can win, and Governor Hill is the leader. In such a light all democrats looking to party success must necessarily be for Governor Hill. He is the man for the democratic nomination. when nominated will whip the fight. No other man spoken of for the democratic no nation can do this. Hill is my choice for the C. P. N. BARKER-I am in favor of Senator David B. Hill for the nomination. I would regret to see the democratic party stab itself with no suicidal intent, and JUDGE J. D. CUNNINGHAM—I am for Hill. that's what it will do most certainly I believe he is the most available man in the if anybody but Senator Hill is put in and Jauntless He Stands, and True.

New York state is lost. I regard it far better to be safe than sorry, and I am certain the nocratic party will be sorry if Senator Hill is not put in the lead.

JAMES R. WYLIE-Mr. Hill is the most available candidate, and I am a Hill man. I think it will be a grave error if Mr. Hill is

CAPTAIN J. W. MORROW, Sheriff of Fulton County—Put me down for the man who can win. While Mr. Cleveland made an able president, he defeated his party by holding the republicans in office. Such a man is not the right kind of man to put out for candidate next time, however able he may be. Hill is the man, unquestionably.

Donald Bain-I am for Senator Hill first, last and always. He should be nominated, because he can be elected and because he is undoubtedly the greatest democratic leader. JAMES R. HOLLIDAY—I am a Hill man out and out, and certainly look forward with eager gratification to the day of his election.

Gus Long-Kill is the man. It is folly to think of any other democrat as candidate.

THOD A. HAMMOND-I am for the man who can win. It is necessary to carry New York state.

EUGENE HARDEMAN-Hill is the man to be nominated by the democratic party. He is the only democrat, I think, who can carry the party through to victory.

W. C. GLENN—This is no day for mug-wumpersy. Democrats must not—cannot—stand back mealy-mouthed, sickly, tenderfoots. Put a hard worker in the lead and let's go on with a rush. Hill is the man.

JOHN BERKELE, ex-Member of the Council and ex-Street Commissioner-Cleveland made a good president and I'm proud of his record. Hill I think would make just as good and his record would give me the same pride, if not more. Yes, I guess I'm for Hill.

JOHN TYLER COOPER, Clerk of the County

Commissioners, ex-Mayor of Atlanta, ex-Alder-manand ex-Councilman—No one admires Cleveland more than I do, but I'm inclined to think we have gone by him. He does not keep even with his party. Hill is progressive, and I will give him my support. Still I'm for the nomi-nee of the party, whoever he may be.

DR. C. J. GEORGE-I'm a young man, but a democrat. Being both young and a democrat makes me a Hill man from Lithonia to Stone Mountain-that's where I live, and up there everybody is my way.

Hill Not Bigger Than the Party. R. C. Bosche, Member of the County Democratic Executive Committee-Hill's a man after my own heart. If he gets there, and there is no doubt in my mind about that, he'll work about him. I say give the boys a chance. So does Hill, and that's one reason among many that I'm for Hill.

S. W. POSTRLL, Journalist, Job Printer and Member of the County Committee-Hill always leads and asks the people to follow. He never stands behind fight is over, but is always in the hottest of it. admire his honesty, his candor and his faithfulness to his party. Naturally, I'm for

Dr. A. R. DANFORTH-I was born a democrat. Hill's birthday and mine come on the same day. Twins are inseparable.

HENRY DURAND-I'm for Hill, of course, Make Sharpe—I am sure everybody about this end of the union depot is for Hill.

MORRIS BRANDON-It seems to ma a selfevident truth that to win the democrats must carry New York. All talk to the contrary is closely akin to moonshine. If Mr. Hill is the choice of New York—and especially if that choice is emphasized by New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana-then Hill should be the C. D. HILL-If I had the power myself to nominate a candidate I would name Mr. Cleveland; but if it develops that New York will send a delegation to the convention in-structed for Hill-which it now looks very much like-then I am for Hill. The whole story, briefly told, is: I am for the nominee and the man that can win the fight. FULTON COLVILLE-I am for Hill against the world; for Hill, the greatest fighting democrat of the age. There is no compromise in my position. I want a man to win, a fighter; and the one man in America that occupies that position above all others, is David B. THOMAS L. BISHOP-Cleveland didn't turn the rascals out when he was president. Hill will turn them out when he gets in the white house. That's what the democratic party wants. I am for Hill. DR. C. E. STILES-Cleveland gave New York a republican postmaster, which was very distasteful to the democrats of that city and state. I am not in favor of a man for president who will give the biggest city in the union a republican postmaster. I am for Hill.

MARTIN F. AMOROUS-I am for Hill, and he will undo btedly be the nominee. There is every reason why he should be. His policy is in harmony with democratic principles. He has been tried, and has grown in popularity every year. To my mind he is the greatest man in the party today, and commands the greatest strength.

In the Opinion of Georgia's Late Legislators,

TO MAKE THE PRESIDENTIAL RACE. The New York World Makes a Poll

FOR THEIR PRESIDENTIAL PREFERENCES,

And Lo, When the Column Was Run Up, the Name of Hill Led All the Rest.

NEW YORK, February 7 .- [Special.]-The New York World is polling the legislators of Georgia on their presidential preferences. It shows up magnificently for David B. Hill, showing him to be almost two to one for Cleveland.

The Story in Full. The following dispatch from Georgia explains the situation:

The World correspondent sent out circulars, ten days ago, to the members of the Georgia legislature, inviting an ex-pression of their presidential prefereuces. As the names of Grover Cleve-land and David B. Hill had been almost exclusively debated in the state press, with the preponderence of editorial opinion on the side of the former, the members were asked to define themselves on that phase, if it so pleased

There are 219 members in the Georgia legislature. Of these 135 have answered up to date. There are a great variety of opinions expressed, notably by those members who are regarded as of third party tendencies. The answers, epitomized, are: For Hill straightout

For Hill qualified
For Cleveland straightout For Cleveland qualified.

For the man who can carry New York.

For the nominee of the convention.

For neither Hill nor Cleveland.

For third party ideas.

For Benjamin Harrison. For James G. Blaine

The great bulk of the preferences for Hill came from the essentially rural regions of the state, while Cleveland led in the larger cities. As there are 137 counties in Georgia, but six of which are controlled by their city inhabitants, it will be seen that the rural elector is an important

Who Went Crazy on His Bridal Trip Here Last Summer.
Columbia, S. C., February 7.—Rev. George

Kildow, a student at the Southern Presbyterian Theological seminary, in this the presence of his young wife, by cutting his throat with a razor

His Lost Night. On Saturday night he went to bed in his usual good spirits, apparently without the slightest trouble on his mind. This morning at 5 o'clock Mrs. Kildow rose and stepped into the adjoining department, with the purpose of lighting a fire therein. She left her husband just waking, and noticed nothing unusual about his appearance. She made some remark to him as she was going through the door. She thought it strange that he did not reply.

The Suicide. She had hardly got into the other room when She had hardly got into the other room when she heard a fall and a gurgle. She rushed to the door of the bedroom, and there saw a sight that almost froze her blood. There lay her husband on the floor in his night clothes in the threes of death. The blood was spurting from a ghastly wound in his neck in a perfect flood, and by his side lay a bloody razor, show ing how the deed had been accomplished. As soon as the horrified young wife could regain the use of her voice, she uttered a shriek which, in a few moments, brought the other occupants of the house to the scene. It was at once seen that the young man was aland one smart muscle at the back of the heck, had been completely severed from the body.

There was no doubt that Mr. Kildow had been insane for some time. He was only twenty-six years of age, and was originally from Maryland, coming here from Virginia. He was married to a Virginia girl in Tennessee saveral months ago.

His Eccentric Marriage Trip. Immediately after his marriage he went to Atlanta to the Kimball house. He had been there two days, when he came down to the ofthere two days, when he came down to the or-fice, saying everything was wrong in his room, and he intended to sue for damages. He seemed to have taken an idsane idea that the hotel people were persecuting him. From the Kimball he went to the Markham, where he was put out. The police then locked him up for safe keeping. His brother took him home to Virginia for a couple of worths.

As yet, however, this has not been done. The resignation has been written, and for some time has lain in the chief's desk, but it was never forwarded to the commissioners. They may construe his communication in January as a virtual resignation, and then, again, they may not.

Captain Couch himself has been in benver, and will not return home in time for the meeting tonight. Should a new chief of detectives be chosen, there is a great deal of interest as to who he will be. Several have been prominently spoken of in connection with the position.

There are other matters to some up, including the election of two patrolmen.

BLAINE IS OUT.

He Declines Formally to Be a Candidate for Congress.

AND PASSES OFF THE PUBLIC STAGE

Harrison and Morton Will Be Re Nominated at Minneapolis.

THE DEMOCRATS ARE SURE TO WIN.

And Will Go Into the Campaign with Spirit and Enthusiasm to Win-

WASHINGTON, February 7 .- [Special.]-Blaine is out of it.

He will not be a candidate for the republican presidential nomination, and he has declined, just as I stated in these dispatches ne would do, several weeks ago.

He has written a letter to Chairman Clarkson, of the republican national committee, stating that his name would not be presented to the convention. It simply neans that Mr. Blaine is carrying out the deal he made with President Harrison when the latter appointed Steve Elkies secretary of war. Blaine then promised that he would not antagonize Mr. Harrison, and this letter is to carry out the promise. He will now turn in and give Mr. Harrison his earnest support, and Mr. Harrison, in turn will aid and indorse the Maine man in his plans for reciprocal trade with foreign countries.

He Is Out Sure Enough.

There are some who charge that Biaine and Clarkson are playing their cards together, and that Blaine writes this letter to create a popular clamor for himself throughout the country, sufficient to cause him to write another, stating that he is not a candidate, but that in the event the nomination is tendered him he could not decline it. This is, however, bosh. Blaine attempted this in 1888 in his Florence letter. It did not work then, and no one knows better than he that such a scheme would not work now. Mr. Blaine is a shrewd politician. Like all politicians, he would resort to a degree of trickery to satisfy his ambition, but there is no trickery in this. Mr. Blaine is sincere, he is honest in his letter. He will not be a candidate.

The Old Ticket.

The Minneapolis convention of the Republican party will renominate the old republican ticket. It will be Harrison and Morton again, and it will be practically a unanimous thing. But this letter of Mr. Blaine's means much for the democracy. It will be an easy thing to elect a democratic ticket over Harrison, where it would have been difficult in the extreme to have defeated Mr. Blaine.

The Letter in Full. Here is Mr. Blaine's letter:

WASHINGTON, February 6 .- Hon. J. S. Clarkson, Chairman of the Republican National Committee-Dear Sir: I am not a candidate for the presidency, and my name will not go before the republican national convention for the nomination. I make this aunouncement in due season. To those who have tendered me their support I owe sincere thanks and am most grateful for their confi. dence. They will, I am sure, make earnest efforts in the approaching contest, which is rendered specially important by reason of the industrial and financial policies of the government being at stake. The popular decision of these issues is of great moment and will be of far reaching consequence. Very sincerely yours,

JAMES G. BLAINE.

What the Republicans Think. The letter was not given out until 10 o'clock tonight, and opinions upon it were difficult to secure. The few republican en about the hotel lobbies were unanimously of the opinion that, while expected, still it clears the political horizon of their party, and means a united convention and a united party in the contest next fall. It gives the Blaine howlers time to change tune and fall in line before becoming too far estranged to prevent graceful flopping. The democrats are highly pleased. They believe it means democratic success. They know it means Harrison's renomination, and they believe him the easiest man in the republican party to de-

The Democrats Enthused.

"The democratic nominee will be elected," said Mr. Blanchard, of Louisiana. "I heard this letter was coming, but I feared it would not. I do not think we will find Mr. Harrison a difficult candidate to defeat."

"I believed it was coming, and I am glad it has come," said Colonel Livingston. "We can defeat Harrison, sure. It looks like everything is working towards democratic success."

"With a candidate who stands with the people on the tariff and the financial question," said Judge Lawson, "the democratic party cannot help from winning now. I never believed Mr. Blaine would be the republican candidate, but I have feared him. Blaine would make a much stronger man than Harrison, and I am glad he is out of it."

An Interview with Colonel Livingston. The Post prints the following interview with

Colonel Livingston today:
"Colonel L. F. Livingston, president of the Farmers' Alliance in Georgia, at the Metropolitan last night, was asked: 'What about the alliance cause in Georgia?'

"'The alliance people of Georgia are united in their demands for lower taxation, especially upon the necessities of life and such articles as are used in agricultural pursuits. If this should cause a deficit in the revenues of the government, they wish that met by an inome tax. Indeed, they are for an income tax per se. They are equally in earnest in their lemands of a financial system that cannot be controlled in the interest of monopolies, spec-lators and capitalists. 'They believe that if the government credit is to be used as a circulating medium (green-backs) then that credit, in the form of money, should go to the people, and 'not to a money nonopoly as now. They believe that any shuts out men of small means and men follow ing a legitimate business, and open only to capitalists, should be avoided. In other words, ney will understand that who ever controls the money, controls the prices of labor and transportation. They believe also that the government should distribute its credit impartially, so that all sections, classes and enterprises could be bettered by a good, sound, stable and sufficient circulating medium."

These are the two most important demands made by the alliance in Georgia and overywhere, and rest assured that they will not cease their demands or slacken their efforts until these are complied with, and woe be unto the political parties that refuse aid on this line. The apparant division in alliance ranks in Georgia is owing to an appre-Georgia is owing to an appre-hension on the part of some alliancemen that neither of the old parties are willing to grant relief on either of their demands. The action of the present congress will settle the question of fealty to the democratic party on the part of thousands and tens of thousands of southern alliance democrats.'

DR. E. N. CONNALLY-New York's choice should be the nation's choice, particularly if he is a good, strong man like Hill. I believe Hill is the most available man in the party, and I am in favor of him.

Dr. JOHN W. NELMS-The Hill sentiment has grown phenomenally in the past six months. It is still growing and will continue to grow. I see in David B. Hill a statesman and a leader, and I believe he not only is the strongest man in the party, but will make the best president. I am for Hill. "I Am a Democrat."

JUDGE JOHN L. HOPKINS-We shoul defer to the wishes of the New York democracy, as New York is absolutely necessary to demo cratic success.

JOE HUNNICUTT-Hill is the man to win with. Every indication points to him as the most available man in the democratic party. MAJOR D. N. SPEER-I think Hill the most available man in the party. I want a man who can win. I believe Hill is that man. He is available; Mr. Cleveland is not. We want to succeed and Hill is the man to succeed

J. CARROLL PAYNE-Hill is the most available man, therefore I am for Hill. Success is what the democratic party wants, and it seems to me Mr. Hill is the key to the situation. W. RHODES HILL-Hill seems to be the

HUGH T. INMAN-My opinion is that Hill seems to be the most available man. I am not a politician, and I admire Mr. Cleveland very much; but it seems absolutely essential to democratic success that the wishes of the doubtful states should be considered, and if they are for Hill-as they seem to be-then Hill should be nominated.

We Must Go in to Win

JUDGE T. J. SIMMONS, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia-I am in favor of David B. Hill as the most available demo-crat for the nomination. He will be most apt to win, and that is what we want. Mr. Hill is the man to nominate beyond the remotest shadow of a doubt.

ROBERT FREEMAN-Of course it is Hill. He is a four-times winner. He is the man for mocrats to stand by every time HARRY C. BROWN-It would be suicidal to nominate Mr. Cleveland MAJOR BEN DAVIS-Hill is the only man the party can nominate and hope to succeed.

He is the only available man.

DR. R. D. SPALDING—You may put me down as for Hill first, last and all the time. Governor Hill's career should commend itself to every good democrat, for he is the best of democrats. His strength cannot be gainsaid democrats. His strength cannot be gainsaid by his enemies in the party or out of it. No man in public life can show a purer, clearer record. His private life and public career are such as to commend him to every lover of good government. Then he is the man who can win. It is the greatest folly for anybody to imagine we can win without New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana. In making a nomination we must, therefore, consider the the wishes of the democrats of those states. They are not for Mr. Cleveland. Whey they speak you will find that they are unanimous for Hill; and my own notion is that by the time the national convention meets this unanimity of opinion will have spread through the democracy of the country. We want the man who can win.

A TALLAPOOSA SUNDAY.

A Day of Serene Quiet Among the Pines.
Social and Educational Matters. TALLAPOOSA, Ga., February 7 .- [Special.]-Nothing in the world could be mere quiet or restful than a Sabbath in the Mountain City, where the very air breathes a grateful bless ing and the pines whisper their balmy prayers of peace and comfort for all men. In striking contrast to the bustle and hum of yesterday dawned this beautiful day of rest and, awakened from a night of the refreshing slumber I have rarely known since childhood, by the silver tones of the church bells, I prepared to attend worship in one of the several fine

Every denomination has its church build-ing, and I took the opportunity of looking into cach for a few moments.

Tallapoosa's people are zealous Christians, and the atmosphere of religious fervor impressed me equally at the several churches.

I was deligited with the cordial welcome given me and felt assured that to the stranger within the gateway it meant all that was implied.

within the gateway it meant all that was implied.

It is such little things as this that more often than otherwise prove to the casual visitor the depth and value and the beauty of true religion and make us long to stay within its gracious influence and among its disciples. While Tallapoosa's congregations are devoted to their own interests and separate causes, there is a pleasant harmony prevailing among all the faithful, making them really one flock, and Baptist and Methodist, Presbyterian and Episcopalian are all wedded in brotherly love and congeniality. The Presbyterian church editic, recently dedicated, is a beautiful and convenient structure,

The Presbyterian church edifice, recently dedicated, is a beautiful and convenient structure, nearly as large as the splendid building occupied by the Baptists.

Returning from church, I stopped to more closely examine the fine, new brick school building, just completed at a cost of $10,000. It is in every sense a modern building, thoroughly equipped and perfectly constructed. One might imagine it had just been transplanted from Boston.

Tallaposa may well be proud of this house of learning and her excellent educational system and privileges, which are not surpassed in the south or north.

Long may the flag of freedom and progress wave from the lofty tower of her noble high school, which I shall visit while in session.

As I dwell among these people and become better acquainted with their charming ways and generous hospitality, which is as truly southern as if native born, I am more and southern as it hadve born, I am more and more impressed with their genuine worth and sterling qualities.

The culture and refinement of our highest civilization sheds its delightful fragrance here, and fortunate indeed is he who may enjoy at the same time all the rarest charms of states amplified the states at the same time all the rarest charms of nature—sunshine, flowers, atmosphere—and the exquisite satisfaction afforded by contact with the better and higher elements of good

It is possible to meet almost any evening in

It is possible to meet almost any evening in a most congenial circle, the artist, author, noet, composer, scholar or statesman of distinction and renown.

Tallapoosa in this respect is singularly favored, as to her permanent society is always added a sparkling sprinkle of visitors to her sunshine and water.

sunshine and water.

I can but feel that with the grand foundation already laid for religion, education and society there is but one outcome for this fair city, already indicated by the magical progress she has made in her general growth.

In a quiet stroll about town I was enabled

In a quiet stroll about town I was enabled to judge impartially as to the streets, sanitary condition, and general care of the public premises, which proved to me the efficiency and progressiveness of the municipal government.

From Mayor Dean, who is an Illinoisan, through the entire list of councilmenthere exists an intelligent harmony and resolute energy that preclude the chance of corruption, neglect, extravagance or folly of any kind in the city affairs.

A more sensible, business-like council it would be hard to find.

Their policy is favorable in the extreme to

would be hard to find.

Their policy is favorable in the extreme to the growth of Tallapoosa, and a very liberal charter allows them to aid in many ways the extension of all proposed improvements.

Seeing the dummy on the wing toward the Chalybeate spring, I joined its passengers and for two or three miles through splendid bardwood groves, covering the new additions of the land company, enjoyed a fine ride over a smooth and speedy track.

Refreshed by a draught of "iron" at the romantic old cotton gin, I looked toward the river over the immense plant of the Swift Powder and Cartridge Com-plant of the Swift Powder and Cartridge Com-

plant of the Swift Powder and Cartridge Com-pany, to be in operation in a few days.

This layout must be seen to be appreciated.

I may be able to partially describe it in a future letter. It is a ten-mill plant in the fullest sense of the term, and will make pow-der, enough to supply the mines, railroad work, hunters and politicians of the south.

A convenient package of powder will be called the "domestic brand," suitable for mothers-in-law, weary-waiting wives and ammothers-in-law, weary-waiting wives and ambitious sisters to use in blowing up newly acquired sons, tardy husbands and annoying brothers.

From the powder mills to the wagon factory, about four miles, we went in no time; and one must by surprised at the number of new houses going by surprised at the number of new houses going up on every side. In a hurried way I counted more than a hundred.

Instead of looking smaller the Hitchcock wagon works, Howe stove works, Hayes chair factory, Heaton emery wheel works, ice factory, furniture works and other concerns, all seemed to appear to cover more ground than I at first thought.

Certainly these institutions are immense.

I wish the correspondents of The Investor, Syracuse Standard and other maliciously inclined sheets were here on the ground with me. I could show them in one minute without spectacles, more improvement in Tallapoosa than they could admit in a year, at the rate they've been tearing things.

they've been tearing things.

I cannot close without telling of some oil paintings I saw this evening—an entertainment that happily concluded this ever-to-be-remembered Sunday—four representations of southern "cracker" life, the work of Mr. Lyell Carr, a telented young artist, who shows in his remarkable work the training of the great Millet and the modern masters of the old world. His "Georgia Cotton Gin" and "Chicken Peddler" will command the attention of connoisseurs and critics and obtain a tion of connoisseurs and critics and obtain a place in fame. Tallapoosa is the artist's para-dise, her picturesque surroundings affording every imaginable opportunity of form, color and phase of primitive life, and the romantic sentiment of this mountain land attracts the

Tomorrow I shall give a thorough investiga-tion to the various industries here and offer you a letter very different from this quiet Sunday one.

A VALUABLE LAPBOARD,

Which Has 27,706 Pieces in It, Made by a Convict.

Thomasville, Ga., February 7.—[Special.]
Mr. John Detwilder, of the City hotel, has a lapboard that is something wonderful on account of its workmanship. It contains 27,706 separate pieces of inlaid wood. Every single variety of hardwood in Texas is represented.
There are twenty-nine varieties, all finished in natural grain. The lapboard was made and presented to Mrs. Detwilder by a convict in the state penitentiary of Texas, located at Rusk. The convict was serving out a fifteenyears' sentence. The board is valued at $50.
The same convict made a small piece of furniture that was sent to Chicago and sold for $500.

SOME GEORGIA HISTORY.

The Judges, Clerks and Reporters of Georgla's Supreme Court.

Georgia's supreme court was organized in 1845. Prior to that the superior courts, which had been organized about 1792, were the highest tribunals in the state. In the old days there was no appeal from the superior court.

Tradition says that the great Lord Brougham pronounced Georgia's judiciary to be the best in existence, and England's was remodeled somewhat upon the plan of Georgia's.

ATLANTA, GA., February 8, 1892.

Go Slow! While the work of organization for the pending democratic campaign is being undertaken, it will be well for all good democrats to remember that IT WILL BE ABSOLUTELY ESSENTIAL to carry the vote of one state to insure a democratic vicforv. That state is

New York!

Without it the party cannot win by any possible combination of states which may be counted democratic.

THE CONSTITUTION has never entered into abuse of Mr. Cleveland-he does not deserve it. It is nothing less than shameful for any democratic organ to become cheap claquers to rehash republican slanders against distinguished democrats. We are for the man who can win this

If New York and the doubtful states want Mr. Cleveland he should be nominated. But do they want him?

The question will be answered wary

In the meantime it will be interesting to observe how many democrats propose to swing themselves into an iron circle, from which they will be powerless to help the democracy, should it developas it soon must-that the states whose votes must be democratic to give the party victory, want some other man than the one of their choice.

Big Sales of Bonds.

The accumulating capital in New York seems to be seeking investment in railroad bonds. The sales of such securities for the month of January have been larger than in any morth during three years. The amount of railroad bonds sold in the New York stock exchange last month was $66,397,600, which is $10,000,000 larger than the sales in December, and $25,000,000 greater than those of January, 1891. The total for the last sixty days is far ahead of the sales in any two months within the last three years.

The Daily Indicator prints a table of prices which shows that the average advance in the price of railroad bonds within the past twelve months was 12 per cent. That paper says the advance came mostly since summer. The inference of The Indicator is as follows:

An active bond market invariably precedes buil movement in the stock market. The con-servative investment demand, which at first seeks only the better class of bonds, then the lowerpriced bonds, at last finds its way into the stock market, and then begins a scramble for bargains.

We believe that the time is near at hand when the stock market will fall heir to the over-demand for bonds, and just as the bond market is now more active than ever before known, so also the activity in the stock market exceed all previ-

The tone of The Indicator is decidedly bullish all through, and due allowance will have to be made for that fact. A reasonable inference from existing facts is that the heavy earnings of the railroads, resulting from enormous crops and an unprecedented movement of grain to the ports, has put railroad securities in a stronger position than they have occupied for some time. Another very significant fact is that all the great banks of Europe, except the Bank of England, have handsomely increased their coin revenues during the past year, notwithstanding the fact that short crops have turned the balance of trade heavily against Europe in favor of the United States. Europe, then, must have sold something besides merchandise in order to pay for the immense quantitles of grain she has bought of us, and still carry over so much coin. When the heavy sales of railroad bonds happen at the same time, the plain inference is that European holders of American secur ities have taken advantage of heavy railroad earnings to sell railroad bonds for good prices. Europe had to raise money, and fortune favored her with a favorable market for the very thing she could be st spare-American railroad bonds.

A Father of Democracy Speaks.

Judge John Martin, who is widely known as one of the fathers of democracy in Kansas, has a four-column letter in The Topeka Democrat on the presidential situation.

This Nestor of Kansas democracy urges upon his party the imperative necessity of free silver, tariff reform and opposition to monopoly,

Concerning leaders, Judge Martin says that this is no time to give ourselves up to theoretical politicians and their dreams. We need practical politicians, who know how to secure practical results by the fair use of honorable instrumentality within reach. He declares that Mr. Cleveland never had any political experience, and knows nothing of practical politics, and never managed a campaign. He charges the restoration of the republica to power to Mr. Cleveland's mistakes, and says that his election this year would make free silver impos sible, while his civil service ideas would perpetuate an aristocracy of republican office

In conclusion, this wise old democrat admits the importance of yielding to the claims of New York. Without the vote of that state no democrat can be elected president. Without the aid of Tammany no democrat can carry New York. These incontrovertible statements should make our course plain to all democrats of ordinary prudence. Judge Martin thus ends

If Mr. Cleveland shall be nominated, I shall hope

If either Governor Hill, Senator Gorman, Governor Flower or Governor Gray shall be presented by New York, and accepted by the national con-vention, I shall feel confident of his election. In my judgment, the last named four gentle are the ablest, wisest and best party leaders have, and the election of either wo

it weighs a ton. A Plea for Democratic Unity.

The communication signed "Chatham," in another column, should be read and seriously considered by every democrat in the state.

The writer of the letter is one of the soundest, truest and most influential democrats in southern Georgia, and his voice has never failed to command attention and respect in our party councils. His statement of the situation, the impending danger, and the way to avert it, must impress every reader with a profound sense of the ominous truths so clearly set forth.

It is true, as "Chatham" says, that personal contentions and recriminations are endangering the unity of the party. It is also true, as he makes very plain, that nine-tenths of our farmers and toilers who have always been democrats, are for free silver, the repeal of the tax on state banks of issue, and a reasonable expansion of the currency. These men-the majority of the democratic party-need and demand relief, and they demand it for the democracy under a leader and on a platform in sympathy with their views and their remedies.

Let the majority rule. It should dictate the platform and name the leader. Any factious and stubborn opposition from the minority must inevitably result in division and disaster. The united democracy led by the chosen representative of the majority will go into the fight with victory assured. But if the minority usurps the management of party affairs, then look out for the third party. The great body of democrats in Georgia, and throughout the south and west are no more willing to suffer financial ruin under a democratic president than they are to endure it under a republican president. They demand the nomination of a president who represents them, and who does not represent the financial views of the mugwumps, monopolists and goldbugs of the east.

Baptists on Federal Liquor Laws. The New Union Baptist Association, recently held with the Philippi Baptist church, Lumpkin county, in this state, recorded in its minutes an emphatic protest against the federal internal revenue law,

The committee of temperance, with Hon. W. P. Price chairman, said in its report:

We want the internal revenue laws so repealed as to place the control of the whole liquor business in the hands of the state authorities, believing that the time has now arrived when the citizens of the state will not be willing for "any guilty man to escape." The liquor business in the hands of the general government is a fraud, and the laws are so executed as to increase the manufac-ture and sale of liquor, instead of suppressing the same. The public mind is so enlightened upon the subject of liquor as to be able to control restrict it in every form, provided the control of it is relegated to the people by congress. The committee also recommended state prohibitory legislation, but it is plain that prohibition can never amount to anything when the federal government blocks its working with its present liquor laws. The government is now interested in the manuure and sale of whisky to the $200,000,000 per annum. In the language of these good north Georgia Baptists, "the liquor business in the hands of the general government is a fraud!"

The Sweating System.

This subject will come up for discussion in congress in the bill Senator Hoar has introduced to lay penalties on the sale of goods made by what is known as the sweating

Since Thomas Hood wrote the "Song of the Shirt" the misery of the poor needlewoman has been increased rather than relieved, and it makes the heart sick to read the unvarnished statement of facts as they exist in the crowded manufacturing cities. Poor human beings vegetate in cellars from which the sunlight is shut out, and toil day and night for food enough to hold soul and body together.

This state of things is due to the sweating system, a process of farming out garments so as to bring the half-starved seamstresses in competition with one another, and get the work done for a song. The evil was sore enough when confined to one city, but recent investigations have shown that the sweaters have set the poor needlewomen of New York to competing with one another. This made the competition fiercer and the seamstresses more miserable. The legislature of Massachusetts had passed laws against the sweating system, but it was not able to control interstate commerce, and Senator Hoar is attemping to get a remedy in congress. The subject is a difficult one to handle, for anything in the nature of a restriction of trade is a dangerous precedent. Still the inhumanity of the sweating system shows how destructive a factor unrestricted competition may be made. When competition is unequal and unfair it is about the most destructive thing in nature. Factories may agree with each other to pay no more than a certain pittance for stitching garments, while the needlewomen are too numerous and too poor to combine. It is combination on one side and competition on the other. The result is that the women work for starvation wages. Some remedy will have to be found for this grinding of the face of the poor, or there will be a worse than volcanic upheaval of society. These miserable people think that a society which tolerates such inhumanity is not worth maintaining, and they can hardly be blamed.

IN THE CONGREGATIONALIST a physician writes nterestingly about the grip. In Jackson's day his opponents called the disease "Jackson's itch and Tyler's opponents called it the "Tyler grippe." La grippe is only one of the figurative terms—used by the French to describe the influenza. Others are "petite post," "petite courier," "grenade,"

The Germans have varius descriptive names for the grip, such as "blitz (lightning catarrh), sheep cough), "huehuenziep" (crowing), "mode-deber" (fashionable fever), etc. The Russians call it Chinese catarrh, the Germans often call it the Spanish catarrh. The Italians invented the term influenza in the seventeenth century, and at-

I sincerely hope and trust that the neces-sity for taking it will have passed when this reaches you, but I am very anxious, indeed, that you shall be protected in everything in which I can advise. I do nothing empirically, and my friends when they know me as you do, believe in me. Hence I say to you that since la grippe has first made its appearance I have never lost a case, nor even had a man go to bed from its effects, though have had, as you can understand, hundreds of cases here among patients. I know and can safely say that asafetida is a specific for this disease and an innocent one. I wish the physicians all over the world would recognize this fact. It would save many lives and much suffering." The Chicago Tribune advises people to try it when they have the grip. It can do no harm, and it may cure them

"It strikes us that when the national democratic convention on the 21st of June nominates Senator David B. Hill president of these United States, some of our distinguished contemporaries who are now abusing him so viciously will have a bigger dish of crow to swallow than they can well manage. They fly the democratic colors, but to read their villifying attacks on Senator Hill, one would have good reason to think he had hold of a rabid, radical sheet. Will they follow their present bent and go over to the radicals in June, or will they eat crow?"

The Irwinton World, in an editorial on the best man for the presidency, says: "Hill is described as the democrat that never lost a battle." #### THE THIRD PARTY.

From The Augusta, Ga., Chronicle

The people's party is being wounded in the house of its friends—dishonored in its own country. Through the official organ of the Farmers' Alliance, published in Kansas, the executive com-mittee takes occasion to assert, with unmistakable emphasis, that there is no legitimate affinity be-tween the people's party and the alliance. They are separate and distinct organizations—"the people's party being outside of and independent of the alliance." Thus it is that the third party, cradled amidst discord and discontent, meets with reefs and breakers all along its tempestuor seek relief through practical and conservative means, the spirit of the people's party will return to the demagogues who gave it.

From The Brunswick, Ga., Times. It is not at all surprising to see notices in the ewspapers that the third party has obtained hold of the necessary swag with which the party coffers of the republican national committee are always abundantly replenished. Seeing such an inviting prospect to easily capture the state governments, we are no longer in doubt as to the cause now moving the leading republicans in the southern states to unusual activity in attendir thorough organization everywhere. In the pres ence of such facts, it would seem to be time for Georgia democrats to take some notice of them and to begin the preparations imperatively required to defeat the division of their party and oring to naught the machinations of the republic

THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

From The New York Sun, Dem.

The impudent claim of the mugwumps, who cannot get admitted to the convention of either party, is that were more time left for deliberation the error of an unwise or impolitic presidential nomination would thereby be avoided, or at least rendered improbable. Is that so? The latest state conventions for the choice of delegates to be held by the New York democracy met in May of 1872, and in May, 1888; and both by a singular coincidence on the same day, the 16th. Did the holding of conventions at so late a period best serve the purposes of the party and secure more profitable deliberation? On the contrary, the lemocrats were badly and most ignomi beaten on both occasions, with Greeley in 1872, and with Cleveland in 1888. The republicans are in power in the federal government. The way to dislodge them is for the democrats to force the fighting. It cannot be done otherwise, and now is the right time to begin.

HILL OR CLEVELAND.

A Striking Communication from a Distin guished Savannah Democrat.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION—The democratic party is now engaged in partisan disputes, full of rancor and calumny and which bode no good promise of success in the impending presidential campaign. With an unwieldy majority, com-posed largely of new and inexperienced men in the United States house of representatives, it is a hard task to retain unity and present an unbroken hard task to retain unity and present an unbroken part in the coming contest.

Abuse of great party leaders, personal contentions among prominent democrats and recriminations bitter and biting between the great democratic journals pain the hearts of those who love the party, its principles and its history, and who believe that in its success is bound up the peace, fraternity and prosperity of the country, and prefer its victory to the preferment of any man or clique. Men claiming to be democrats are either knowingly or intentionally or blindly and foolishly engaged in the work of digging the grave of the party.

men who live in the towns and are not in The men who live in the towns and are not in touch and sympathy with the great mass of democratic voters, are fatally unnaware of and oblivious to the real situation, the true state of affairs. The farmers and toliers of the south, who are white men, have stood by the democratic party and its standard bearers. They have never lattered nor flinched. They know the evils from which they suffer are not the result of bad legislation passed by a party which has not been in full power since the election of Lincoln. They are today in as great financial straits as they were in 1896. They think there are remedies which can be promptly and beneficially applied. Nine-tenths of them believe in the free coinage of silver, the removal of prohibitory taxes on state Ame-tentus or them believe in the free colinage of silver, the removal of prohibitory taxes on state banks of issue, a reasonable expansion of the currency, and provision against the inevitable contraction under our present national financial system, which comes from the payment and retirement of the United States bonds. They demand action on those matters. retirement of the United States bonds. They demand action on these matters. They need relief. They will either have it through the democratic party or abandon that party and seek it through other political alignments and associations. They will support no man for congress or the presidency who is not with them on these issues. If the democrats nominate a manwhether he be Cleveland, Palmer or Gorman, or some unknown man as yet; who is against their views on these questions, or the platform made is not in accord with their views, I verily believe we shall see a revolt, an uprising of the masses that will defeat the candidated and overwhelm the party. I have high regard for Mr. believe we shall see a revolt, an uprising of the masses that will defeat the candidatel and overwhelm the party. I have high regard for Mr. Cleveland, He is honest and able, but his nomination will be repudiated by the masses of the people, and drive them into the third party. With Blaine as the republican nominee he will be beaten out of sight; will not be in the race. With some editors and city people Mr. Cleveland is popular. They sing his praises and denounce his rivals. There are just enough of them to make a noise and kick up a dust, to irritate and disastisfy the great mass of voters without whose support no one can hope to win. On a liberal, progressive platform, which meets the requirements of the times and demands of the people, there is one democrat who can sweep the country like a whirlwind, and one only, in my judgment. He is a democrat who has never faltered in his devotion to his party—never dailied with its enemies, and who has never permitted its banner to trail in the dust of deject when borne by him. David B. Hill can win. His nomination will be equivalent to an election. feat when borne by him. David B. Hill can win. His nonmation will be equivalent to an election. He will be a democratic, not a mugwump president. Under his administration the country, and not the party, will be safe. To deride and disparage him is a work of folly and political suicide for the party. With him is sure success, without him is imminent danger of dis# aster and defeat. While neither a farmer, are office holder or seeker, I am a democrat and know the feelings, the wishes, the prejudices, if you please, of the southern farmer and workingmen voters. Many of them are ripe for revolt They will not train under Cleveland. They

Editors and politicians who wish democratic success are urgently begged to stop and think, to mingle with the masses of the people as I have. If they will do this they must come to the same conclusion that Cleveland will split, distintegrate and destroy democratic victory in the south, and will, with this, destroy the power of the democratic party. Hill will unite it and give victory, certain and permanent.

From The Danville Times, Dem.

We are very sorry to see a split in our party, but there is only one way to deal with bolters, and that is to sit down heavily on them. From The Fredericksburg Free Lance, Ind.

If it ain't Hill it will not be Cleveland. That is dead sure. The democrats do not know a good thing when they see it. From The Amherst New Era, Dem.

Hill is twice as strong today as he was a few months ago, and Cleveland is weaker. We know that Mr. Cleveland's friends don't like and will not acknowledge it, but it is true, and it will simply take a few weeks to prove it to their entire satisfaction. From The Norfold Landmark, Dem.

The peculiar and distinguished feature of Gov ernor Hill's vaulting ambition is that, so far—up even with the present writing—there is no tangi-ble convincing evidence that it ever did either overleap itself or fail to alight just where the democratic party was in need of it. It "got there'

The Income Tax.

From The Jacksonville, Fla., Standard. THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, in commenting upon the tendency to encourage the investment of alien capital in southern industries, exters a pow-erful plea for a graduated federal income tax as likely to relieve visible property of the burden of taxation, which, under prevailing conditions, too often falls upon such property regardless of its earning capacity.

There is but one just and equitable basis of taxation. Those who have most should give most; and there can be no more accurate test of the real value of property, as distinguished from its nominal, than its productive capacity in dollars and

That the principle involved is one too vital to be rience of our own state. It has long been known that there is in Florida a serious discrepancy be that there is in Florida a serious discrepancy be-tween income and disbursement, and that from this fact arose the necessity for those loans which have from time to time tided the state over diffi-cutties more or less pressing. This discrepancy arises less from the condition of the state than from the system of assessment commonly em-ployed here. Between public office and public zeal there is unfortunately little connection, and as far as our assessors have been concerned, the easy way has too often been the best way.

These words cost the Son of God His life, yet the self-surrender of this will to the will of the Father brought supreme joy, a conscious joy that made Him endure the cross, despising the shame. As the endurance of trial made Joseph to be the means of the liberation of his people and also advanced him to the right hand of the throne of Pharaoh, so the trials and sufferings of Christ liberated all mankind and advanced him to the right hand of the throne of God. With every child of God patience in suffering has an unconscious influence which is powerful and effective, and it inevitably scaures the happiness of the individual himself.

The religion which seeks freedom from pain

The religion which seeks freedom from pain and care is not akin to Christ. "If we suffer with Him we shall also reign with Him." Sufferi both in body and in trial of spirit—dejection both in body and in trial of spirit—dejection of soul—as the twin spirits, sorrow and misfortune, brood over every child of earth and bring the dismal presence that is fraught with danger to the soul, brings out the true character. "As thou wilt" is hard to say and feel at first amid the temptations of the world, the flesh and the devil; but, like Christ, like Joseph, like Daniel, Stephen, like Saul of Tarsus, like all the saints and martyrs who adorn the pages of the Bible and the history of the church, we, too, must have our Gethsemane; we, too, must be led up into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And it remains with us, as with Him and them, how we shall suffer, with conscious joy, and come forth victosuffer, with conscious joy, and come forth victo-

This is the Way an Iowa Jury Made Up Its Verdict.

OTTUMWA, Ia-, February 7.—A sensation was created here yesterday by the discovery that the jury in the case of Ed. Fitzsimmons, charged with burglary, had arrived at a verdict of guilty by casting lots. The judge, learning of this, immediately set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial. The jury had placed six slips of paper marked "guilty" and six marked "insane" in a hat. One was drawn by a juror whose back was turned. by a juror whose back was turned.

TO MEET DEATH ON THE PAVEMENT.

Thirty People Lose Their Lives and Over a Hundred Are Missing-Many May Be Buried in the Ruins.

NEW YORK, February 7.-A disaster, appalling in horror, bringing to mind the terrible occurrences in Park Place, still fresh in public occurred in this city early this morning. The Hotel Royal, that well-known landmark which has stood for more than a quarter of a century at the southeast corner of Sixth avenue and Fortieth street, burned to the ground and a large number of people were burned, suffocated or crushed in the ruins.

At the time of the disaster there were nearly one hundred and fifty guests in the hotel. The hotel employes all told numbered seventy-five. Of this number of people five thus far have been found dead, six in the hospital and sixtythree have been reported alive.

One Hundred Missing. One hundred are still missing. The number of dead probably will not exceed, at the later estimate, thirty persons. The scenes are heartrending, and appalled even the firemen and policemen, who are used to terrible scenes. Soon after the fire broke out ambulances arrived from the various hospitals. Many physicians whose residences were in the did all they could to relieve the injured. Nearly every one of the 124 rooms which the hotel has on its five floors were occupied last night by guests, many of them transient.

The Hotel Crowded with Guests In fact all the rooms, save four, had been taken at 1 o'clock this morning, when ard Mears, the proprietor, went to bed. When the flames burst forth from some unknown cause near the elevator shaft, the entire building instantly enveloped in flames. At 3:05 o'clock Mrs. Isabella Mears, wife of Mr. Richard Mears, proprietor of the hotel, awak-ened her husband, telling him that the house was-naru stears, proprietor of the hotel, a wakened her husband, telling him that the house fiames through a crevice of their room. Mr.

Mears had only retired at 1 o'clock and was aroused with difficulty. He sprang out of bed and ran into the hallway. Volumes of smoke filled the halls and the flames were making their way rapidly up the elevator shaft to their apartments on the third floor and far

A Fight for Life.

A glance at the situation was enough to tell him the story. He ran back to his wife's room, and shouted: "Now, you follow me," snatched up a coat and again ran into the hallway. He fought his way straight to the staircase, sup-posing that his wife was close behind him. The passageway was choked with dense smoke, which almost strangled him. Then throwing his overcoat over his head to prevent suffocation, he bent his head low, and groped his way to the banister on which he pla his way to the bahister on wallong up from left hand. #### He Jumped to Safety

To run down for two flights meant death, and so he swung himself over a hand rail and dropped twenty feet to the ground. He landed on his feet without a broken bone and made his way to the street. Mr. Mears was among the first to leave the burning building, and when he made his exit he did it before the arwhen he made his exit he did it before the arrival of the first engine. But even in those few minutes the flames had gotten their grip on the fated structure, and fire was shooting from all the windows offthe upper floors. When Mr. Mears reached safety in the street, there he realized that his wife was not with him. At that moment the hook and ladder truck arrived. By aid of the ladders Mrs. Mears and another lady were saved with slight injuries. Dashed to Death.

Before the fire companies arrived one man, whose name is not known, sprang from a window of the third story and was dashed to death on the ground below. The people turned their faces away, horrified at the sight. A moment later another man leaped from a window on the Fortieth street side and was instantly Shortly afterward two women jumped from windows on the Sixth avenue side, and were dead when picked up. Their dead bodies wese taken to the Thirtieth street sta-tion house, and afterwards identified and removed to the morgue.

People dropped from the windows or slid down ropes, with which every room in the hotel was provided, and others, with their wits about them, used the fire escapes to good advantage.

Scorched and Burned by the Flames. A considerable number of those who escaped by these means from the upper stories were badly scorched by the flames bursting from the lower windows. One young lady lost a fine head of hair in this way, but escaped serious harm. One young man who is something of an athlete let himself down from window to or an atmete let almsel down from window to window and suffered nothing worse than a few burns. When the walls fell people were seen at several windows on the top floor crying for help, but they fell back and were soon buried stage rehearsal tomorrow evening at DeGive's opera house. The study of the first act is now practically completed, only the finishing touches upon the work being yet necessary. The second act has also been gone over often enough to leave little yet to be done. The principals are well up in their respective parts and everything is moving along in the most gratifying manner. The rehearsals are extremely interesting and the club attendance is very full at every meeting. The people of Atlanta are assured of a rare treat in the production.

The membership of the club at present is as follows: Miss May Kenny, Miss Ella Powell, Mrs. Will King, Miss Kate Thomas, Miss Adelaide Glenn, Mrs. Howell Jackson, Miss Clara Werner,

The crimes for which they are to suffer punishment were committed in the fall of 1890. S. B. Varn had bought a piece of property from the Waycross Lumber Company, adjacent to the home of Nice. A man named Hitts afterwards sold the same property to Tom Sears, who soon discovered that he had made the purchase under a wrong title. A few days later some men were put to work on the land by Varn, and as one of them, Campbell Parker, was leaving in his wagon he was shot from ambush.

Nice and five others were playing cards in the yard at the time, and it resulted in their taking issues. They quickly rushed into the log cabin on the premises, bolted the doors and windows and opened fire on Sears's party as they came towards the place with their ritles. he was shot from ambush.

A number of shots were exchanged, and two of those outside, Hendrix and McClen-don, were instantly killed, and one other Nice and Golden alone remained on the scene afterwards, and they surrendered to the sheriff. Two others were soon caught, but the fifth man made good his escape.

The killing aroused a great deal of indignation, and the air was thick with threats of lynching. At the spring term of court Nice was given imprisonment for life and Golden was sentenced to hang. The other two negroes were cleared.

A Mob Rises Up. A Mob Rises Up.

In August the men were granted a new trial, and instantly rumors of lynching floated about again. They became greater and greater, and in December culminated in the gathering of a mob of about fifty men, who marched to the jail to hang the two men.

They burst into the prison and reached the cell where Nice and Golden were confined. Half of it was protected by sheet iron, and the lynching party, failing to effect an entrance into the cell, shot through the open bars. The prisoners crouched and conviction—$200 for each man. When the negroes were brought up for trial their counsel warned them about the lynching and advised them to plead guilty to avoid being murdered by a mob if they were cleared. Their clients obeyed and Nice was given twenty years, and Golden a life sentence. Last work they were again (asset a land) in week there were again foars of alynching, and every provision was made against it. Neither one of the negroes has a desperate or rough look. Both are more intelligent than the average colored man, and after their terrible experience of the yast year appear glad to have the protection of the Dade mines. They accompanied Captain Starnes very willingly, and expressed their hopes yesterday of being able to breathe free air again through exceptive elemency.

Golden is twenty-nine years old; Nice is somewhat older, both men leaving families behind them at Waycross.

AY THE EMINENT BROOKLYN DIVINE

In His Sermon Yesterday at the Tabernacle-The Humiliation of the Babylonish King.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., February 7 .- [Special.]-BROOKLYN, N. Y., February 7.—[Special.]—
With a mighty acclaim the long-meter doxology rose at the beginning of the service. The inestimable value of Christianity as an elevating and ennobling influence on the nature of man formed the subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon this morning. The brilliant and original mon this morning. The brilliant and original preacher chose as his text the humiliation of the Babylonish king, who, being destitute of religion, sank to the level of the brute. Daniel IV, 28, "All this came upon the King Nebuladaryar."

Colonel Rawlinson, the oriental traveler, says that the exhumed bricks, not only of Babylon, but of a hundred towns in an area of miles in length and thirty in breadth, are inscribed with the name of Nebuchadnezzar. He was a great warrior, and at the glance of his sword nations prostrated themselves. He was a great king and built a city reservoir 90 miles in circumference and 120 feet deep, and constructed a hanging garden square and 75 feet high. some say to please Amuhia, his wife, who had been born among the hills, and others say to get a pleasure ground free from the mos-quitoes, which afflict the levels. I think, from his character, the latter reason may have imled him as much as the former When he conquered King Zedekinh, so as to have no re trouble with him, he put his eyes outmost barbarous way of incapacitating an nose carrarous way of incapacitating an enemy. But Babylon was a great place, the houses surrounded by gardens, and the house-tops were connected with each other by bridges, and one-day Nebuchadnezzar walked out on those suspension bridges and showed, perhaps to a royal visitor, the vastness of his ealm as the sun kindles the domes with listenings almost insufferable, and the great streets thunder up their pomp into the ear of the monarch, and armed towers stand around adorned with spoils of conquered empires. Nebuchadnezzar waves his hand above the stupendous scene and exclaims: "Is not this great Babylon that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power and for the kingdom by the might of my power and for the honor of my majesty?" In other words; "What a great man I am. Babylon was not anything until I dorned it. See those waterworks; see those rardens; see those forts. I did all this. I hall never be forgotten. Why, my name is m every brick in all those walls. Just look t me. I am more than a man." But, in an stant, all that splendor is gone from his on, for a voice falls from the heavens, say-ng: "O King Nebucnauhezzar, on thee, and noken; the kingdom is departed from thee, and thy dwellpower; the kingdom is departed from thee, and they shall drive thee from men and thy dwell-ing shall be with the beasts of the field; they shall make thee to eat grass as oxen, and seven times shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of imes shall pass over thee, until thou know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men and giveth it to whomsoever He will." Due hour from the time he made the boast he so his way to the fields a maniac, and rushing into the forests he becomes as one of the leasts, and is after awhile covered with eagles' seathers for protection from the cold, and his sails grow to look like bird's claws in order that he may dig the earth for roots and climb the trees for nuts.

The mental disaster that seized him was what the Greeks called lycanthropy, by which a man imagines himself a beast and prefers to go out and mingle with brutes. He who had been eating pomegranates and apricots off of plates of gold inlaid with amethyst and diamond, and drinking the richest wines from the toyal vats, now browsing on grass, and struck by the horn of the ox as he contends for a better tuft of the pasturage, and instead of an orchestra on benches of ivory playing the mational airs, now listening to the moan and bellow and grunt of the beasts. This is not hard for me to believe, for the forms of dementia are innumerable. A few years ago, arriving in a city on a summer afternoon, while withing for my engagement in the avening I fiving in a city on a summer afternoon, while waiting for my engagement in the evening, I mantered forth into what seemed to be a park in front of a large public building, the use of which I knew not. I met a gentleman, with whom I fell into delightful conversation, and be seemed intelligent on all subjects. After swhile, I said: "Let us sit down on this bench Then, I saw that he was insane, and belonged to the large building just behind us. After tuch an interview as that, I can easily believe this account of my text. Here is Nebuchad-nezzaron all fours. He once prided himself of being more than a man, and now he turns out-less than a man. The courtiers look out of the windows upon him as he mores among the royal herds and cry, "A beast!" Seven years pass when suddenly his reason returns, and he comes back to Babylon a humble worshiper of the God of heaven. What must have been the excitement in the en. I saw that he was insane, and belonger What must have been the excitement in the royal court as this restored maniac emperor walks into the palace. What a time they had in cutting his nails and his hair, which had grown for seven years without being interfered with by any shears. What a scrubbing down must have taken place in the imperial baths. What a transformation necessary in order that he who had been herding with camels and goats and swine may be made fit to associate with princes. What a change from sty to throne-room.

While walking from his Babylonian palace down to the pasture field, and from the pasture field back to the palace, the first thing that impresses me is what an incongruous thing it is for a king to be eating grass. It is good for eatth but on the party of the palace. Incongruous thing it is for a king to be eating grass. It is good for cattle, but not fit for man. And then for one to prefer it to a royal table toward whose bounty the orchards, and paddocks, and streams, and vineyards in all the castle which contribute—what an amazement! earth might contribute—what an amazement! And yet the scene is as common as the day-

And yet the scene is as common as the daylight.

When I see a man of regal nature made to rule in realms of thought, capable of all moral elevation, besotting his faculties, attempting out of low sensualities to satisfy his immoral energies, coming down off of his throne of power into brutalities, sacrificing his higher nature to his lower nature, stooping and stooping, coming down and coming down until all his influence for good is gone, I cry out, "There is a king eating grass like an ox!" And there are tens of thousands of such And there are tens of thousands of such ebuchadnezzars. So there are queens who edicate themseives to the same humiliation. That power for good God gave that woman. Magnetism of personal presence. Influence more than imperial. By her intelligence, by her tenderness, by her charm of smile and manner, capable of soothing so much sorrow, and reforming so much waywardness, and wielding so much elevated power; yet at the tail of worldliness, coming out of the throne-toom of good inthuence where God would thave her reign, coming down over the incon-traction of good influence, where God would have her reign, coming down over the ivory stairs of moral power, coming down and com-ing down until she has no more soul than the flead hird transferred in her millingry ead bird transfixed in her millinery the chinchilla that was slain to afford er warmth, or the kid that furnished her for the warmth, or the kid that furnished her cally he glove, and finding her only delight in the chottische and debauched novelettes. swer was "Robert! I have forgiven you long ago. There is nothing to forgive now except that you stayed away so long." My hearer, forgiveness has been ready for you a good while. With more than a mother's tenderness God will take you back. They are waiting for you up in the palace. Nebuchadnezzar was the son of Naboplassar who ruled before him, and you are the child of a King! The next thought that presses into my mind from the contemplation of this incident is that conviction is not conversion. Who is this monarch that makes the boast about Babylon? The very man who, under the revelation of dreams that Daniel made from heaven, deeply humbled himself, while he confessed that God is a God of Gods and a Lord of Lords, yet behold that that humbling and arousing which her before the says of t is a God of Gods and a Lord of Lords, yet behold that that humbling and arousing which he before felt did not result in a radical change. There is no mistake more frequent than of supposing conviction a synonym for conversion. Conviction is merely a sight of sin; conversion a view of pardon. Conviction is merely alarm; conversion is confidence. Conviction is dissatisfaction with depravity; conversion is a turning away from it. Conviction is a sword wound; conversion is the healing. Conviction satisfaction with deplaying conversion is a sword wound; conversion is the healing. Conviction is the fever of thirst; conversion is the slaking of that thirst. Conviction is the pain; conversion is the medicine that cures it. Thousands have experienced the former and never experienced the latter. There are multitudes who think that as soon as a man is serious he is it for profession of religion. What if a man should only think seriously of being a merchant, would that make him a merchant? What if a man should only think seriously of being a lawyer, would that make him a lawyer? What if a man should only think seriously of being a Christian; would that make him a Christian? Felix was convicted but not converted. The jailer was convicted but not converted. The jailer was convicted until at the advice of Paul he believed in Christ. Are you convicted but not converted? I tell you what you make me think of. You have a single part of the state o I tell you what you make me think of. You have made up your mind for proper consideration to deed away a property. You have drawn the deed. The seal is affixed opposite where you are to write your name. The commissioner of deeds is present to witness. You have your pen in hand. There is ink in the pen. There is only one thing for you to do, and that is to sign your name, stop now without signing your name, what does it all amount to? Nothing. So you have resolved to give yourself with the Code. what does it all amount to? Nothing. So you have resolved to give yourself up to God. You propose to sign off to him your body, your mind, your soul. You have all things necessary for the transfer. The angels of God are here to witness the eternal transfer. Why do you not now with your will complete the work? Halt where you are, and all goes for nothing. Sign your name to this spiritual transfer. Professor Arang the Managarician got wordly discontinuous control of the mathematician got wordly discontinuous. your name to this spiritual transfer. Processor Arago, the mathematician, got woofully discouraged in his work and was about to give up, when he saw some words on the paper which had been used to stiffen the cover of his book, and the words being indistinct he dampened the cover until he could take it off, and saw the words being and the found the cover until he could take it off, and saw the cover until he could take it off, and saw the words plainly, and he found they were words of advice given by D'Alembert to a student, and the words were, "Go on, sir; go on!" Oh, ye who are convicted, "Go on!" You must take one more step, or all the steps you have taken will amount to nothing.

Goon!

Learn also from my subject that pride is the precursor of overthrow. Pride is a commander well plumed and caparisoned, but it leads forth a dark and frowning host. "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." The arrows from the Almighty's quiver are apt to strike a man when on the wing. Goliath shakes his great spear in defiance, but the smooth stones from the brook make him stagger and fall like an ox under a butcher's ger and fall like an ox under a butcher' bludgeon. He who is down cannot fall. Ves bludgeon. He who is down cannot fall. Vessels scudding under bare poles do not feel the force of the storm. What are those three sleds that have just gone into the yard of a miserable hotel in Warsaw, Poland, on the cold night of December 10, 1812? Who are they, who from these sleds have entered, and the servant is trying to build for them a fire with some green wood? Napoleon, with six attendants, on retreat from Moscow. The fire amid the green wood has gone out, and the emperor is on retreat from Moscow. The fire aims the green wood has gone out, and the emperor is walking the floor to keep from freezing. Then bounding into his sled, the thermometer 26 degrees below zero, he disappears in the darkness. He, who a little before had an army under his command, together with troops of-fered by other nations, in all 1,187,000 men, now retreating through that December night with three sleds, and those of his army not dead under the snow, reduced for food to a handful of rye dough, seasoned with gunpow der for lack of salt, and a mouthful of hors der for lack of sait, and a mouthful of norse flesh. From what a height to what a depth! Nebuchadnezzar in the palace; Nebuchadnez-zar forsaken in the fields. Again learn from the misfortune of the king of Babylon what a terrible thing is the loss of reason. There is no calamity that can possi-bly befall us in this world so great as the de-rangement of intellect—to have the body of a man and yet to fall even below the instinct of a brute. In this world of sad sights, the saddest is the idiot's stare. In this world of awful sounds the most awful is the maniac's laugh. A vessel on the rocks, when hundreds down never to rise, and other hundreds di their mangled and shivering bodies up to their mangled and shivering bodies up to the wintry beach, is nothing compared to the foundering of intellects full of vast hopes and attainments and capacities. Chairman toundering of interfects that of vast hopes and attainments and capacities. Christ's heart went out to those who were epileptic, falling into the fire, or maniacs cutting themselves among the tombs. We are accustomed to be more grateful for physical health than for the proper working of our mind. We are apt to take it for granted that the intellect which has served us so well will always be faithful. We forget that an engine with such tremendous power, when the wheels have such vastness of circle and such swittness that a could the least impediment might of motion and the least impediment might of motion and that least impediment hight put it out of gear, could only be kept in proper balance by a Divine hand. No human power could engineer this train of immortal faculties. How strange it is that our memory, on whose shoulders all the successes and misfortunes and occurrences of a lifetime are placed, and occurrences of a frietine are praced, should not oftener break down, and that the scales of judgment, which have been weighing so much and so long, should not lose their adjustment, and that fancy, which holds a dangerous wand, should not which holds a dangerous wand, should not sometimes maliciously wave it, bringing into the heart forebodings and hallucinations the most appalling. Is it not strange that the expectations of this intellect should not be dashed to pieces on its disappointments? Though so delicately attuned, this instrument of untold harmonies lays on, though fear shocks it, and vexations rack it, and sorrow, and joy, and loss and gain in quie: specession beat out of it the r druge, or draw from it their authem.

stroyed by anodynes and anæsthetics, which were given by providence for occasional use in alteviation of pain or insomnia, but by being employed continuously after awhile capture and destroy. Chloral, cocaine, bromide of potassium, opium, and whole shelves of seductive etceteras that help turn Nebuchadnezzars into imbecility or madness. Do not trifle with opiates that benumb the brain. If you cannot live without the perpetual and enslaving use of them, you had better die. Better die a sane man than live a fool. What right have you to kill your brain, and put in wild jangle your nervous system? But rum is the cause of more insanity than anything else. There is nothing like rum to put a man, like Nebuchadnezzar, down on all fours.

Again, learn how quickly turns the wheel of fortune, from how high up to how far down went Nebuchadnezzar. Those now in places of position and power, even though they should live, will, in a few years, be disregarded, while some, who this day are obscure and poverty stricken, will ride up on the shoulders of the people to take their turn at admiration and the spoils of office. Oh, how quickly the wheel turns! Ballot boxes are the steps on which men come down as often as they go up. Of those who were a few years ago successful in the accumulation of property, how few have not met with reverses of fortune, while many of those who then were straitened in circumstances now hold the bonds and the bank keys of the nation and win the most bows on the exchange. Of all fickle people in the world Fortune is the most fickle. Every day she changes her mind, and woe to that man who puts any confidence in what she promises or proposes. She cheers fickle. Every day she changes her mind, and woe to that man who puts any confidence in what she promises or proposes. She cheers when you go up, and she laughs when you come down. Oh, trust not a moment your heart's affections to this changeable world. Anchor your soul in God. From Christ's love gather your joy. Then come sorrow or gladness, success or defeat, riches or poverty, honor or disgrace, health or sickness, life or death, time or eternity, all are yours and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's.

Learn also from my subject the comforting time or eternity, all are yours and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's.

Learn also from my subject the comforting truth that afflictions are arrested as soon as they have accomplished their mission. For seven years did Nebuchadnezzar dwell among the beasts of the field, but, at the expiration of that time, his reason returned, and, as soon as with proper humility he acknowledged the God of heaven, he was brought back to his palace and reinstated in his former affluence and power. Now, it does seem that when heavy trials come upon us, it is as though they had no limit. We exclaim: "All thy waves and thy billows have gone over me," but forget that the depth of that sea and the power of that billow are definitely determined. God sees how much our pride is and he sends just enough adversity to humble it. He sees just how worldly minded we are and pulls us just hard enough to detach us from our follies. He sees how hard our heart is and smites just hard enough to detach us from our follies. enough to detach us from our fornes. He sees how hard our heart is and smites just hard enough to break it. He sees how our eyes have been blinded and he cuts only just enough to remove the scales from our spirit-usl vision. As scon as Abrabam's faith is sufusl vision. As seen as Abrabam's faith is sufficiently tried the lamb is provided. As soon as Pharaoh consents to let the children of Israeli depart the plagues pause. As soon as the Israelites have been sufficiently disciplined by their wanderings they find their way into Canaan. But to some the limit is not set in this life. Their whole pilgrimage is through the wilderness and the world is to them a value of terms. But northern God here, special the wilderness and the world is to them a val-ley of tears. But, perhaps, God has a special throne in heaven that no ordinary saint can occupy, and by extraordinary trials he has pre-pared that Christian soul for extraordinary glory. God will not keep you in the furnace one moment too long. Just as soon as Paul had met with enough imprisonment and scourgings he reached up and plucked his eternal crown. God will keep us no longer under the hammer and on the stocks than is necessary to fit us for entrance into the haven necessary to fit us for entrance into the haver of eternal rest. Glory be to the Divine grace that, as soon as our afflictions have accomplished their mission, they are arrested.

The defeats and sorrows of life have sometimes been the greatest advantage. It was be-cause Dante failed as a statesman that he gave up politics, and wrote his immortal Divina Commedia. It was a violent thunder storm that first set Martin Luther seriously thinking, and the thunder of this wor'd's disthinking, and the thunder of this wor'd's disaster has started many a reformation. James Y. Simpson went from a surgeon's operating table to experiment and see if he could not find something that would alleviate human pain, and he kept on until he had discovered chloroform as an anæsthetic, and the story of distress has almost always been followed by the story of rescue. For many years after Shakespeare's death his work was so little appreciated that in 1666 there was only one edition of his works, and that of only 300 copies in existence, and that edition was nearly all burned in the great London fire. But forty-eight in the great London fire. But forty-eight copies had been sold out of the city and those forty-eight copies saved Shakespeare for all nations, and all time. Your suppression on a smaller scale may last a good while, but for all you are worth you will yet shine out on earth or in lieaven.

Again, learn from my subject that connected with the most discressing judgments of God there are displays of divine mercy. God might justly have left Nebuchaduezzar in the field, but infinite compassion brought him back to the palace. No sooner was Eden blasted than a blessing followed on the heels of the curse, promising the coming of one who would destroy sin and make the whole world a paradise. The deluge descends, but not until Noah had invited the people into the ark. The destroying angel comes upon Egypt for the smiting of the firstborn, but left unmolested every house whose door was sprinkled with the blood of sacrifice. Fiery tempests beat down upon Sodom, but not until two angels have warned Lot and his family to flee from the destruction Jerusalem was utterly destroyed, but not until Jeremiah had sounded an alarm, bidding them turn from their abominations. On the dark-est cloud of wrath there is a rainbow of mercy. Zechariah in his prophetic vision beheld four chariots, symbolical of God's government. The first charlot was drawn by red horses.
They indicated the wars that were coming,
The second charlot was drawn by black horses. They indicated the coming of a famine and pestilence. The third chariot was drawn by white horses. They indicated the spotless purity of his conquests. But, mark well that the fourth chariot was draw by horses "grisled and bay," denoting that mercy was mixed with all the desolating judgments of God. Sinai cannot thunder so loud as to drown the judgments of Gott Sinal cannot thun-der so loud as to drown the invitations of Calvary. The Lord utters the admonition: "The wages of sin is death," but exhaustless mercy responds: "Deliver him from going down to the pit for I have found a ransom." Hide thee quick in the rock, Christ Jesus. Let not this insignificant rock, Christ Jesus. Let not this insignificant "Now" absorb thee more than the great hereafter. The path leading to this side of the grave is only a few furlongs, but the path which commences at the other side of it is without end. The powers of darkness gather about your soul, and the temptations of an evil heart, and the allurements of the world I know are trying to drown the voice of the preacher, but, taking hold of the silver trumpet of the gospel which made Felix tremble, and at the Pentecost brought 3,000 souls out of their sepulcher, I would blow one long, loud blast, crying: "Whosoever will, let him come."

Take this goodly religion, which has done so

Take this goodly religion, which has done s such for me that I can commend it to all Without it I should have gone the whole downward career. Stoild and phlegmatic natures going astray do not go so far, but nanatures going astray to not go to far, but matures like mine—sanguine, intense, emotional, optimistic, social to the last degree, and echoing to all the heights and depths of mirth—if they get off the track, they go with one wild leap to hell. As to the restraining power of this religion upon a mercurial temperament. I testify. This is not abstraction or come thing gotten from hooks. I sneek of what mething gotten from books. I speak of wha I know. Go out and ask all who have tried I know. Go out and ask all who have tried this religion and ask them how it works. Three young men in a factory came out on the Lord's side, but two of them, overcome by the jeers of their comrades, went back, and joined the scoffers. The one held on to his Christian the scoffers. The one held on to his Christian hope, and one day when they pressed him hard, and were telling him how much infidelity had done for the world, and that Christianity had done nothing, the persecuted Christian turned upon them, and pointing to Henry and George, who had for a little while followed Christ, and then turned back, he said: "You have trad your principles on the n, and know what they have done for them. When they trad to serve Christ, thay were civil, goodand sorrow, and joy, and loss and gain in quie: succession best out of it the r. d.rge, or draw from it their anthem.

At morning and at night, when in your prayer you rehearse the objects of your thanksgivings, next to your salvation by Jesus Christ, praise the Lord for the preservation of your reason.

mouths are full of cursing and filthiness; they are drunk every week; their children half-clothed, their wives broken-bearted, their homes wretched. That is hearted, their homes wretched. That is what your principles have done. Now, I have tried Christ and His religion, and what has it done for me? You know well what I used to be. There was none of you that could drink so much, swear so desperately and fight so masterly. I had no money, and nobody would trust me. My wife was ill-used, I was ill-humored, hateful and hating. What has religion done for me? Thank God, I am not afraid to put it to you. Am I not a happier man than I was? Am I not a better workman and a kinder companion? Would I once have put up with what I now bear from you? I and a kinder companion? Would I once have put up with what I now bear from you? I ould beat any of you as easily now as ever.
Why don't I? Do you ever hear a foul word from my mouth? Do you catch me at a public house? Has anybody a score against me?

God be praised, here is what Christianity has done for me; there is what infidelity has done for Henry and George." Out of this audience I could gather a thousand men and women who could tell you as thrillmen and women who could tell you as thrilling a story as that as to what religion has done for them. Yea, if times of persecution should come as of old, and they may come, there are a thousand here who would for Christ's sake as cheerfully walk into the furnace of fire as though it were an arbor of thyme and honeysuckle, and face the lions as though they were lample frisking on the of thyme and honeysuckle, and face the lions as though they were lambs frisking on the hillside, and way down into the deep waters which are to submerge them as happily as ever at Narragansett beach they took the surf at a summer bathing. Come up and join those on the way to a palace. What an absurd thing for a king to be eating grass. Instead of living on the poor fodder that the world affords, come up and sit among the princes of God at the royal banquet, and hear the bands play, "Eat, O friends! Drink, O Beloved!" Here is a crown: wear it. Here is a scopter: sway it. Here is a throne: mount it. This is your hour: improve it.

PRIMITIVE JUSTICE.

Bummary Judgment of a Mississippi Jus-

Bummary Judgment of a Mississippi Justice in Territorial Days.

Jackson, Miss., February 6.—[Special.]—
Some seventy years ago, as gray-haired pioneers report, there was in Mississippi a justice of the peace who needed no clerk to write him down an ass. He attended to that clerical duty himself. His district was interior and remote from the centers of intelligence. It was far away in the wild woods. No lawyer dwelt in those parts, and the prevalent idea of justice and the modes of administering it were primitive and somewhat arbitrary. There were no railroads, telegraphs or rapid mails to spread intelligence as in these palmy days.

A man in the neighborhood of this, our modern Dogberry, had the misfortune to take

A man in the neighborhood of this, our modern Dogberry, had the misfortune to take the life of a fellow man, and the functionary had him brought up 10r trial. He examined the witnesses on both sides, made up his mind that the homicide was unjustifiable, and condemned the prisoner to be hanged by the neck until dead, dead, dead. The sentence allowed the man but a few days more of life, and the condemned begged for a little more time. He told the court tearfully that his crop was about ready to be harvested, and he hoped that, for the sake of his wife and children, his honor would spare his life until that duty could be performed. It was the last service he should ever render to those nearest and dearest to him. Friends interceded, and the judge relented. He granted the doomed man a respite of thirty days, and discharged him on his own recognizance, after exacting a solemn pledge that he would appear promptly on the day appointed and be hanged.

A political campaign was in progress that fall. Governor Matthews, a popular stumper, was in the field, and happened to have an appointment at the time and place fixed for the execution. While he was chatting with a group of rustic adherents, a wagon, drawn by two over was observed slowly approaching.

the execution. While he was chatting with a group of rustic adherents, a wagon, drawn by two oxen, was observed slowly approaching. As it drew near it was seen to be occupied by a man, a woman and several children. They were all weeping bitterly, and the wife clung to the husband's neck. The latter was pale and haggard. He stopped his wagon as a bystander (he was the justice) called out: "So you've kept your word, Charley?" "Yes," said the condemned, with a deep sob, "I'm a man of my word; I'm ready to die." Here the wails of the wife and the little ones became heartrending.

ones became heartrending.
"Why, what's all this?" said Governor

"Why, what's an Matthews. "It's a hangin'," some one answered. "But is it all regular?" said the governor, who was a good criminal lawyer. "Oh, yes, it's all right. Jedge Smith knows what he's about., "Who's Judge Smith?" "He's our jestis uv the peace."

"He's our jestis uv the peace."

"And did he try this man?" continued Matthews, becoming very much interested in the proceedings. But he could get no attention, for the procession was now forming to convey the prisoner to the place of execution. The governor followed along half dazed by the amazing procedure, and half believing it was all a practical joke. But it was all in dead earnest. A gallows had been erected, and when the place was reached, the prisoner was made to stand up, and the justice, assisted by his nervous constable, tied his hands behind his back, bandaged his eyes and was beginning to adjust the noose when Governor Matthews called in a loud voice:

"Hold on there, Mr. Justice! Will you listen to me just a moment?"

"Well, what is it, guv'ner?"

"What is the man's crime?"

"Kill'n' another man."

"How was he tried?"

"Kill'n' another man."
"How was he tried?"
"I tried him, and sentenced him to die.
He's guilty, guv'ner. It's all right."
"But it's not all right," answered Matthews.
"It's all wrong. Don't you know that a grand jury must indict a man before he can be tried for homicide? Don't you know he can only be tried in the circuit court? Don't you know that you can only send him to jail, or bind him over to await the action of the grand jury? Don't you know that if you take this man's life, you will be indicted for murder yourself?"
"Is that so, guv'ner?" said the justice, as soon as he could recover breath. And he slowly and sheepishly turned the prisoner loose, while the tears and agitation of the assembled citizens changed to uproarious laughter.
